I. INTRODUCTION

The Planning & Research Unit, Administrative Division of the Rhode Island Department of Corrections (RIDOC) prepared this report. Data contained in the report were obtained through the Department's INFACITS (Inmate Tracking) and Probation & Parole Tracking System databases and analyzed by the Planning & Research Unit staff.

As this report continues to evolve, there is a continued need to modify its content. There are several changes in this report: (1) demographic information related to the total population (awaiting trial and sentenced) have been added, (2) facility-specific pie charts have been replaced with tables showing the same data (i.e., number and percentage of certain characteristics) across all facilities, (3) the Probation and Parole section has been reformatted to provide the same information as that provided for the sentenced population, and (4) workforce and financial data has been eliminated and can be obtained directly from Human Resources and Financial Resources, if necessary.

Additional copies of this report can be downloaded from the RIDOC website at www.doc.state.ri.us/divisions/admin. If you should require additional information regarding the information contained in this report, contact Raymond Perreault, Principal Research Technician, at (401) 462-3921.

II. RIDOC DESCRIPTION AND DATA CAVEATS

RIDOC Description

Rhode Island operates a unified correctional system, meaning that all pretrial detainees and sentenced offenders (regardless of sentence length or crime) are under the jurisdiction of the Rhode Island Department of Corrections. RIDOC has eight (8) housing facilities on the Pastore Government Center Complex in Cranston, Rhode Island. For male inmates, the facilities include: a reception and diagnostic center which houses all pretrial detainees as well as newly sentenced offenders (Intake Service Center); one supermax (High Security Center); one maximum-security (Maximum); two medium-securities (Medium Moran and Medium Price); and one minimum-security building (Minimum). For females, there are two on-grounds facilities: the medium-security (Gloria McDonald Building) and the minimum-security (Dorothea Dix Building). Additionally, about a dozen sentenced females are housed in a transitional housing program (WTH). Both male and female offenders also participate in the electronic monitoring program (Home Confinement).

The RIDOC is also responsible for supervising all adult offenders who are in the community but under some form of community supervision (either Probation or Parole). The great majority of all sentenced offenders in Rhode Island receive a “split sentence,” meaning that they spend some portion of time incarcerated at the RIDOC, followed by time on Probation.

Data Caveats

The majority of information in this report is a summarization of RIDOC’s stock population on October 2, 2003. Readers should be cautioned that stock data do not capture the flow of inmates into and out of Rhode Island’s correctional system; instead, stock data are a “snapshot” of RIDOC’s population on one particular day. Please pay special attention to the title of each graphic, as the title will indicate if the data is representative of a time period other than the stock date (i.e., fiscal year, calendar year).

Offense Categories

Throughout the report, type of offense is determined by the most serious charge for which the offender is sentenced to incarceration or community supervision. As an example, if an offender had both a drug charge and a sex charge, they would be captured in the sex category and not the drug category.

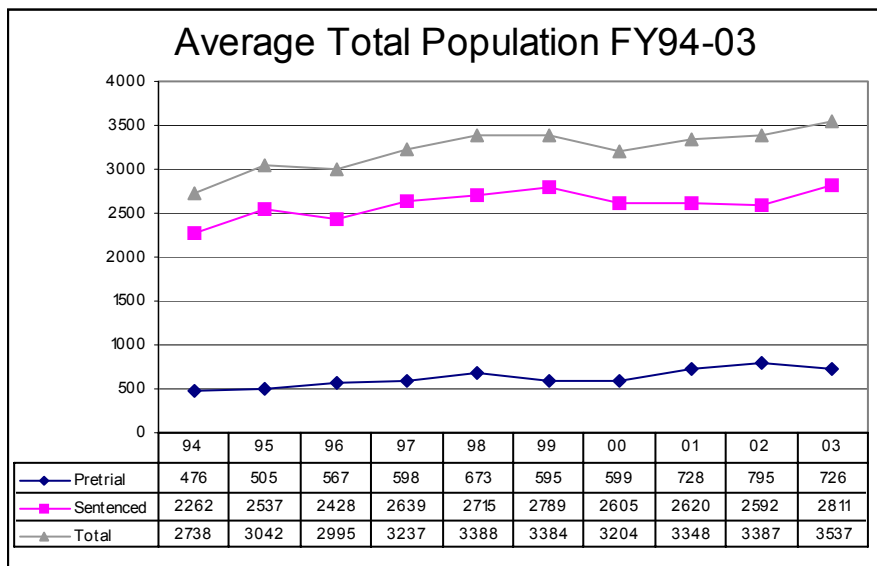

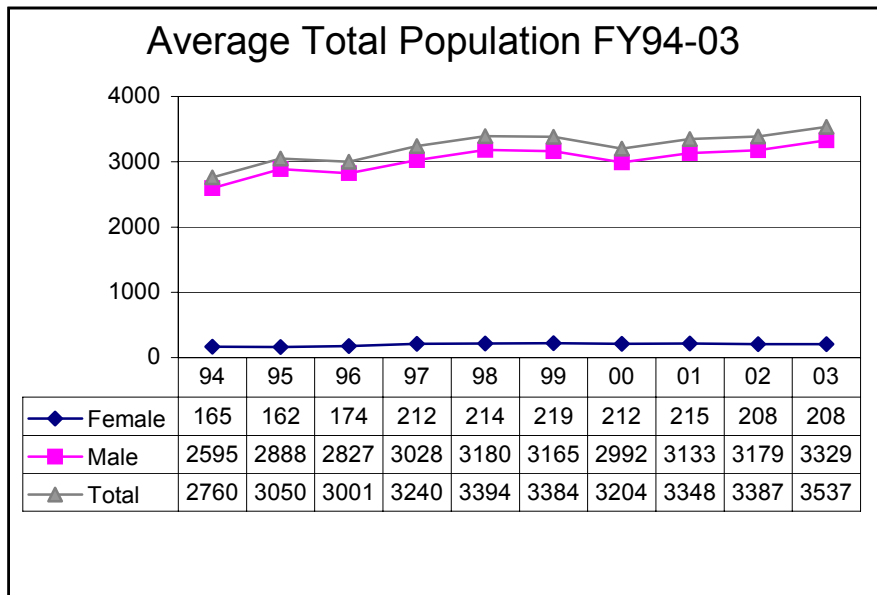

Race Categories

RIDOC records Hispanic as a race rather than as an ethnicity. As a result, we cannot determine whether inmates identifying themselves as Hispanic are white or black. Those identifying themselves as white or black may also be Hispanic.

Missing Data

Unfortunately, in some instances, data is missing from the source database. As a result, totals may not always add up to 100%.

III. TOTAL POPULATION FY94- FY03

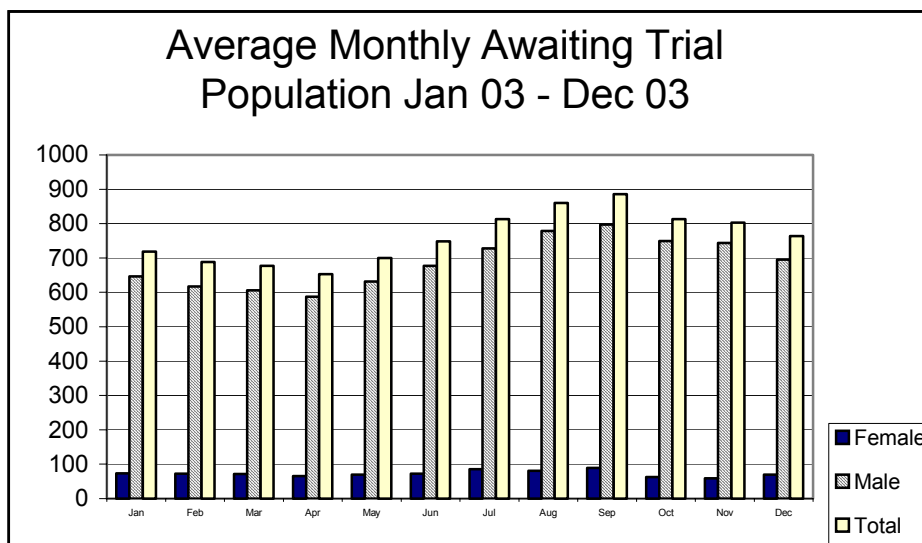

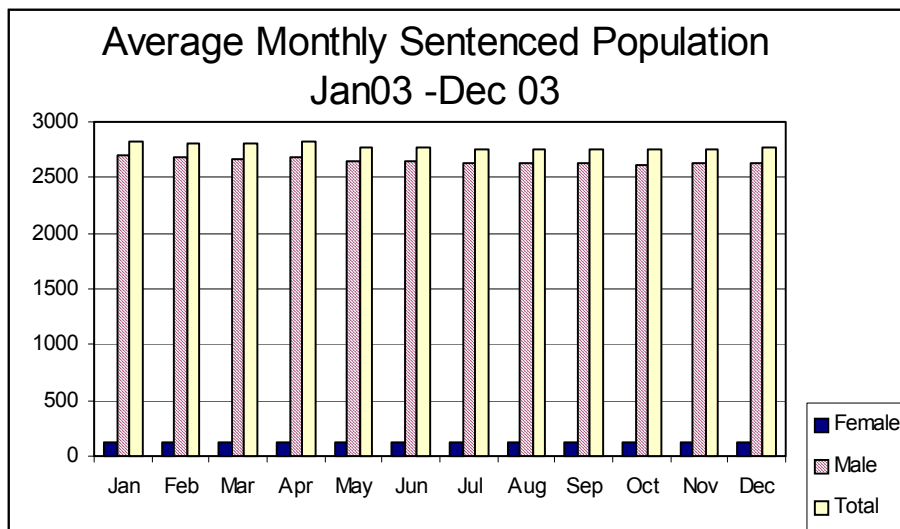

Summary:

The total prison population has experienced a net increase of 28% from FY94 to FY03.

The total population for FY03 averaged 4% higher than that of FY02. The awaiting trial population decreased by 9% from FY02 to FY03. The sentenced population, however, increased 8% from FY02 to FY03.

The total population for FY03 has decreased slightly (1%) from July to December 2003.

The average monthly total population for August and September was over 3600.

Summary:

The total sentenced population decreased by 2% from January to December. Sentenced males decreased by 2%, while sentenced females had a decrease of 3%.

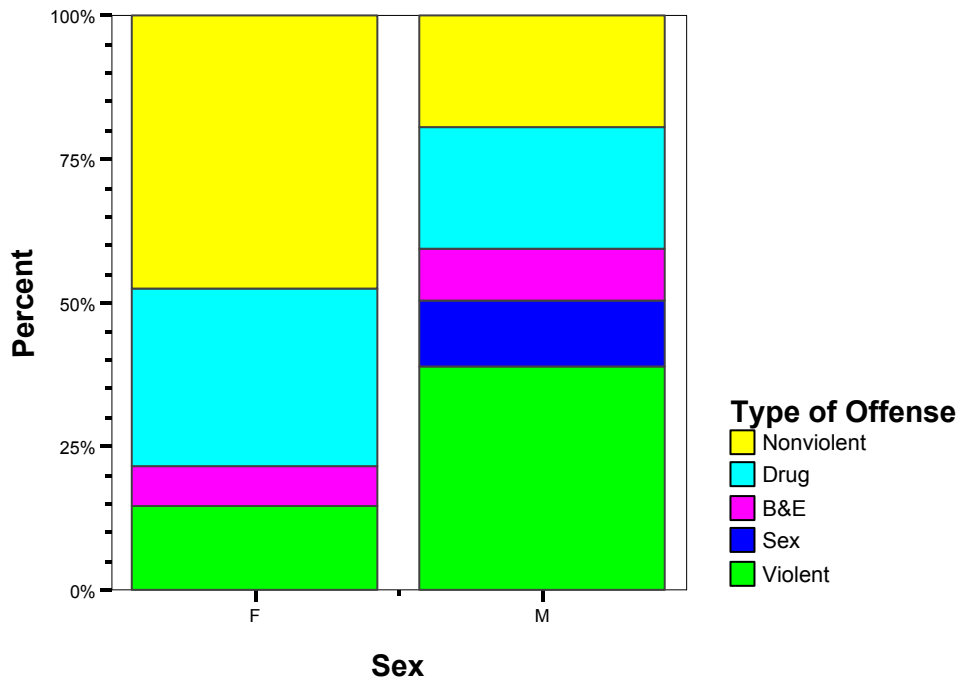

From January to December, the total awaiting trial population increased by 13%. The male awaiting trial population increased by 16%, while the female awaiting trial population decreased by 14%. An all time high of 3700 inmates was reached on September 14, 2003. This figure includes INS detainees held at the RIDOC.

III. Total Population Demographics (n=3601)

- Data below are representative of RIDOC's population on 10/02/03. Included are Rhode Island offenders who are serving in Rhode Island (either in a secure facility, non-secure facility, or on home confinement), and those offenders who are under another State's jurisdiction, but housed in Rhode Island.

- Offenders excluded from the summary statistics below are those offenders who are under Rhode Island jurisdiction but serving out-of-state, and those offenders being detained by the INS (n=62) or other Federal agency (n=5) are also excluded (since this segment of the population fluctuates as a result of the true custodial population).

VI. INTRODUCTION TO COMMUNITY CORRECTIONS DATA

On October 2, 2003 there were 26,927 offenders with an active probation or parole case. The population analyzed in this report (n= 23,275) reflects the workload of Rhode Island Probation and Parole Officers on October 2, 2003. Included in the analyzed population are Rhode Island offenders who are supervised in Rhode Island, as well as offenders whose case was adjudicated in another state, but through an interstate transfer are being supervised in Rhode Island (n= 525).

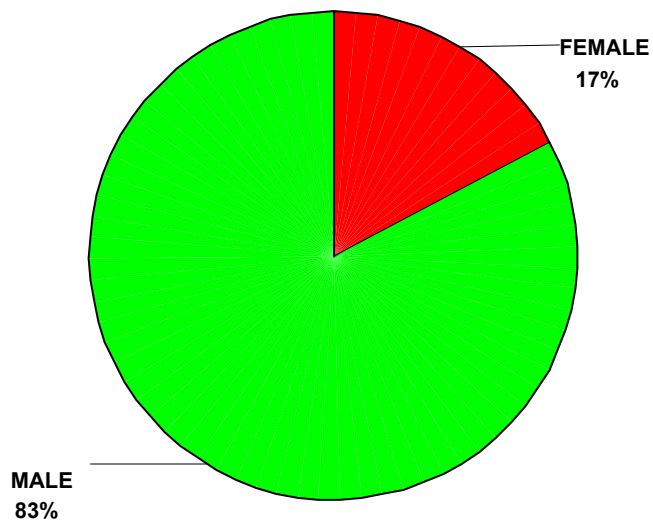

Offenders excluded from the population analyzed are those offenders who were incarcerated on October 2, 2003 and had probation to follow their release (n=1970); were deported and thus not residing in Rhode Island (n=407); and offenders who were sentenced on charges in Rhode Island, but are currently being supervised in another State (n=1,275). These categories of offenders are not supervised by any Rhode Island Probation or Parole Officer are not included in this analysis.

Offenders under a probation sentence are either being actively supervised or their supervision has been suspended. If they are under active supervision they are maintaining regular contact with a Probation Officer, either face to face or via telephone. Those offenders whose supervision has been suspended are not reporting to a Probation Officer on a regular basis. Supervision of an offender may be suspended due to an active warrant being issued for their arrest or a court order mandating the case be unsupervised. Furthermore, cases with suspended supervision may be "banked" because they have been trouble free for an extended period of time or await transfer from one caseload to another. In this report, active supervision and suspended supervision offenders will be reported together.

Summary:

For each offender under the supervision of probation and parole, the case is categorized as either a felony, misdemeanor, interstate or bail supervision.

Bail Supervision cases are offenders whose cases have not yet been adjudicated but are being supervised by a Probation and Parole Officer while out on bail.

Cases identified as interstate are being supervised by Rhode Island Probation and Parole Officers, but the offender was adjudicated in a State other than Rhode Island. For those cases we are unable to identify whether they are felony or misdemeanor cases so they are reported separately as interstate.

If an offender has more than one crime, the most serious crime dictates the felony/misdemeanor status.

On October 2, 2003, the majority of all offenders were under supervision for a felony offense (65%).
